

BOOK CLUB BONUS

Dear Reader,

Thank you for choosing All We Have is Time for your book club! I appreciate you taking a risk on my debut novel when there are so many great books published every week to choose from, and for committing a month of your time to reading and discussing my work. Your support means the world to me!

I hope you enjoy this book club bonus packet I put together, with some ideas for questions to get your conversation flowing, food and drink you can serve at your meeting, and the playlist of the songs I listened to while working on All We Have is Time.

I hope you enjoy your read and it inspires some lively discussion! If you're interested in having me join you for a virtual chat and an opportunity to ask questions, please get in touch!

Happy Reading,
Amy

CONVERSATION STARTERS

If you had a paid account at Aevum to travel back in time, where would you go and why?

Beatrix spends her long life calculating the cost of loving others. What's something in your life that you've evaluated the risk on, and did you do it?

Would you rather have the ability to time travel or be immortal? Why?

Which character in All We Have is Time are you the most like?

Oliver keeps a journal of places he wants to visit and things he wants to do. What's something that you want to do that you haven't done yet?

All We Have is Time explores themes of love, loss, and second chances. What are some other books that you'd recommend with similar themes?

Beatrix has a long relationship with regret after one decision makes her immortal, an emotion that strikes her as "the most human" of all emotions. Do you agree with her assessment? Why or why not?

Did you have a favorite scene or passage? Why did it resonate with you?

The faerie doesn't understand humanity, but wants to experience it. What would you tell her to do to have an essentially human moment?

If All We Have is Time was made into a movie or series, who would you cast as Beatrix and Oliver, or other characters?
